Roy Green owns this land and the cemetery is in his backyard. He said the space is "reserved" on his land abstract. The cemetery is 16 feet square with sides built up to about three and a half feet high and filled in with dirt.

COUNTRY CEMETERY

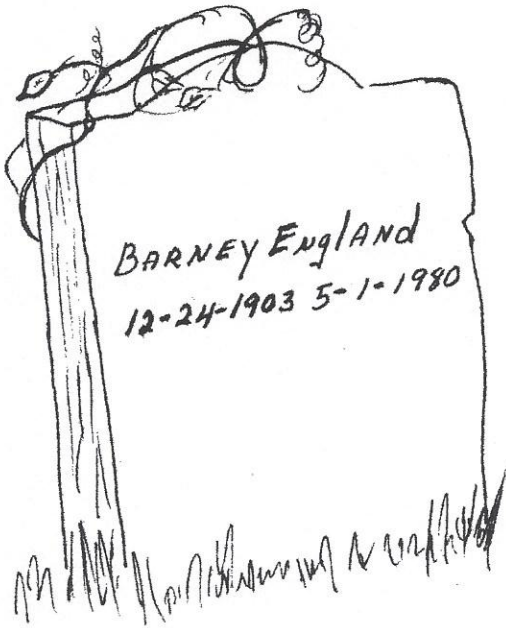

Away from the highway I found the place,
Back of the fields and the thick oak wood,
Where the ancient vineyard wove its lace,
Lonely and still - but I found it good.

The wild doves cooed their sad, sweet song,
The sun lay warm and the sky was fair,
The soft winds crooned the whole day long
To cradle the ones who were resting there.

I read the words of the moss-greyled stones,
And lingered a while in the sacred place,
For peace lay deep in the doves' low tones
And sang with the wind through the old vine's lace.

And peace lay deep within my breast...
For I had seen how the blessed rest.
